Early morning Nevada arrest

Husband charged in Livermore murder case

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. — Nevada Highway patrolmen yesterday arrested the estranged husband of a Lawrence Livermore Laboratory secretary found shot to death Wednesday in her Livermore home.

A complaint signed yesterday by Alameda County Deputy District Attorney Harry Murphy charges William Charles Lamont, 49, with the murder of 36-year-old wife, Helen Ferrell Lamont.

Livermore Municipal Court Judge John A. Lewis signed a no-bail warrant for Lamont's arrest after detectives Bill Bankhert and Jim Serna arrived in Winnemucca to question the suspect.

A Nevada Highway Patrol spokesman said William Lamont was arrested 30 miles east of here Interstate Highway 80 near the town of Valmy. He was charged with drunk driving and possession of a loaded weapon — reportedly a single shot, 12-guageshotgun.

A freak check by local police on Lamont's car as it was leaving Winnemucca revealed that he was wanted for questioning in the Wednesday murder of his wife.

Winnemucca police radioed the NHP who followed Lamont for 12 miles before back up units could assist in the stop.

Patrolman Jim Frei of the NHP pulled Lamont to the side of the road, and, covering him with a shotgun, ordered Lamont out and to the rear of his car, the spokesman said.

Lamont reportedly offered no resistance.

He is being held by the Humboldt County, Nevada, Sheriff's Department.

Livermore Police Capt. Doc Blalock emerged from Murphy's office yesterday with the signed complaint and Judge Lewis immediately issured the no-bail warrant.

If Lamont wavies extradition he will be returned to Livermore today.

Mrs. Lamont's body was found shortly before 8:30 a.m. by her two children, Stephanie, nine, and Valerie, six, in the bedroom of their 5222 Korma Way home.

The children contacted their neighboring grandparents who called police.

Mrs. Lamont was employed as a secretary in the Lab's "L" division, nuclear testing. She had worked for the Lab for three and one-half years.

She reportedly filed for divorce earlier this year after separation from her husband.

Police may have a witness who saw a man with a shotgun standing in the doorway around 2 a.m.

On to Valley Forge!

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gabriel of Livermore will be driving the "Prairie Schooner" covered wagon Sunday when it makes the rounds of Pleasanton, Livermore and Dublin. The wagon is scheduled to be in Pleasanton at 4 p.m. at Wayside Park on First Street and will be on hand for people to observe and sign scrolls which are being carried to Valley Forge on wagons to be part of a ceremony on July 4, 1976 Bicentennial celebration. "An Old Fashioned Sunday Afternoon in the Park" will be held in conjunction with this.

Lack of use permit forces local gas station to close

Work will stop at the old Holland Gas Station at the corner of Main and St. Marys streets pending a special meeting of the Pleasanton Planning Commission on August 27.

The delay is caused by the absence of a conditional use permit for expansion of the gas station. The new owner of the corner plot — which extends down St. Marys Street and includes the jewelry shop and John Amaral's office — failed to get approval for his planned expansion from the city before beginning construction.

Wednesday, the city slapped a stop-work order on Carl Graffenstate, Jr. until the special planning commission meeting was arranged. That detail was taken care of, but Graffenstate can do no more now until the commission rules on his request for an additional dispenser location behind the old building.

Yesterday, the big tanks were placed underground and covered by sand, but city officials indicated that he can do little else until the planning commission dicusses his ideas.

Originally, Graffenstate was going to raze the historic old building — which went up in 1928 — and put in a brand new service station, but backed off on that when he was informed it was a historical site.

However, he hopes to put in three more dispensers in back of the present building.

Graffenstate has no plans to do anything with the jewelry shop and Amaral's office at the present time.

The planning commission's main concern with the expanded service station will most likely be the traffic flow at the busy intersection. After their hearing, a 15 day appeal period will allow for dissenting views from their decision.

Francisan Lines gets PUC fare hike

The Public Utilities Commission Tuesday granted a 33.3 per cent fare increase to Franciscan Lines Inc. for commuter bus service from Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin.

James Drucker, vice president of the San Francisco based firm, said that the new fares would go into effect on either Aug. 22 or 25.

The current price for 20 rides to San Francisco is $22.50, and $19 to Oakland. The increase will boost the prices to $30 to San Francisco and $25.35 to Oakland.

Several patrons were opposed to the fare increase and told the PUC that service had been "irregualar" and equipment poorly maintained. But Drucker discounted those arguments.

"Out of 175 customers, there was only four people that complained." Drucker would not comment on their charges.

The PUC estimated that Franciscan will generate an additional $23,115 in revenues. The company said it lost $56,348 in 1974, but was countered by other services to produce a net profit for the year of $33,673.

Franciscan said its per-mile income was 2.39 cents, compared to 3.17 cents for Greyhound's San Jose-San Francisco route, 2.88 cents for the Golden Gate Transit's Santa Rosa-San Francisco run and 4.84 cents for Franciscan's Danville-San Francisco service.

The company runs four buses per day from the valley on weekdays only. Drucker estimated there are about a dozen pick-up points for commuters in the valley.

Drucker emphasized that Franciscan had never raised its prices during the entire three and one-half years it has been in the valley.

Traffic safety concerns

City denies nursery school

PLEASANTON — Concerns about traffic safety prompted the planning commission to deny Paul and Elizabeth Marshall's request for a Montessori nursery school on Sycamore Road Wednesday night.

The suitability of that use in a semi-rural area bothered some of the neighborhood residents who spoke in opposition to thp proposed school.

The Marshalls had proposed to operate the school weekday mornings for up to 20 children. "I don't think our operation would contribute to the decline of rural life," Mrs. Marshall said. Four residents opposed the school while two spoke in its favor.

The commission's main concern, however, was not the suitability or the lack of city water (a provision for that wateb would have been a condition for approval), but the potentially dangerous traffic situation at the intersection of Sunol Boulevard and Sycamore Road.

That narrow intersection is the scene of a large amount of high speed traffic, including gravel trucks, and at present, there is not sufficient pavement to install a left-turn lane from Sunol onto Sycamore.

The city is now negotiating with Alameda County to improve that intersection but, until that is accomplished, the staff recommended the commission deny the Marshalls' application.

The commission moved to deny the application and, in keeping with the staff rpcommendation, encouraged the Marshalls to reapply when the traffic situation is resolved.

Commissioner Dave Shepherd, however, said, "I'm very sympathetic with what the Marshalls are trying to do but I'm also sympathetic to the people who live there I'm opposed to this (the nursery school) because I feel it is out of character with the area.

The commission also approved Vic Lund Jr.'s design review application for remodeling of the old Edgren new car salesroom at 234 Main St.

Jay Harris, owner of the Corral Drive-In, plans to move his operation to that rpfurbishpd location and the commission also unanimously approved a conditional use permit for that use.

In other action, the commission:

√ Denied an amendment to the ordinance code to allow picture framing shops as a permitted use in the commercial zone; and √ Approved Harold Johnson's request to operate a television rppair shop in his home at 2609 Corte Elena for a six-month period.

Gaels' Boosters meeting Sept. 8

DUBLIN— The first Dublin High Gaels Booster Club meeting will be held in the faculty room of the high school cafeteria on Monday, Sept. 8.

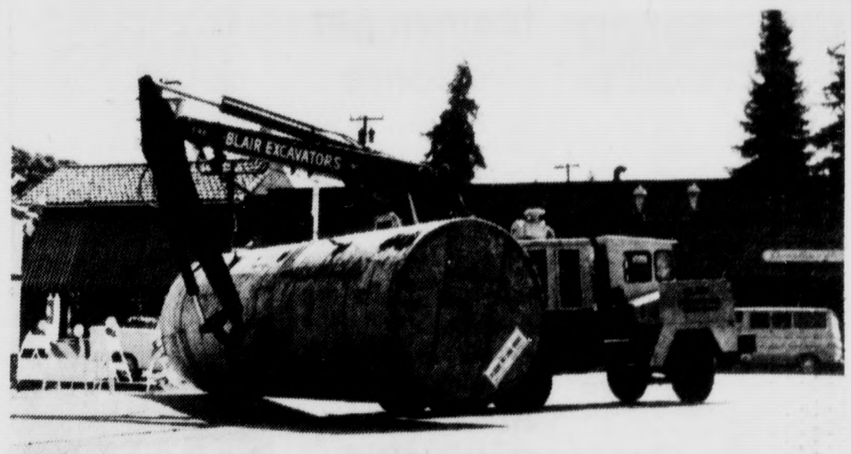
Matters to be discussed include the flea market scheduled for Oct. 11, membership drive, snack bar operation and election of a vice president.

'Directory not ours'

Businessmen throughout the valley wrer caution this week that the promotion of a "Tri Valley Directory" is in no way connected with any of the three chambers of commerce that serve the local communities.

"We understand that some business people are being advised by these sales people that they represent the 'Tri Valley Chamber of Commerce'," explained Chan Henderson, manager of the Pleasanton Chamber. "There is of course no such organization, and there is no official endorsement by our chamber of any such directory." Spokespersons for the chambers at Dublin and Livermore confirmed that statement.

Dublin chamber does have a September retail promotion underway that is no way connected with any directory, and Livermore chamber has in the past sponsored a business-telephone directory from which the local group realizes some profit. However there is no directory now underway anywhere in the valley that is sponsored by or supported by any of the three chambers of commerce.



The new tank for the renovated gas station at the corner of Main and St. Marys streets was installed yesterday. However, city officials stated that no further work can be done until the owner gets approval from the planning commission.

Fairgrounds maintenance not an easy chore

Pleasanton upkeep and repairs bring some chuckles

PLEASANTON— Run over the areas of responsibility Lou Alexander has at tne County Fairgrounds and you'll swear the man will have to work seven days a week from dawn to dusk.

Not so.

Maintaining all buildings, the race track, barns, gardens, and utilities would necessitate at least a 30-hour, 8-day week and that's not counting the continual vandalism which adds to maintenance and replacement chores.

Located in a rambling blue building off Rose Avenue, away from the hustle and bustle of the community but apparently not out of sight of reckless deviants, Alexander heads a maintenance staff that includes Russ Owen, carpenter; Wayne Stephens, electrician; Eddie Warton, painter; Dale White, mechanic; Barney Barnett, full-time custodian; Lorenzo Mori, gardener, and three laborers, four gardeners, five watchmen and several other security personnel.

The staff is augmented each spring with 30 to 40 high school and college-age persons to get the grounds in shape for the Fair.

The vandalism is a constant irritation.

But some of the trespasses are downright funny.

Take the time some years ago that three teenage boys, apparently runaways from Oakland, decided to setup housekeeping in the old pagoda on the roof of the race track grandstands.

Alexander was advised that water was pouring from the roof and went to investigate. Climbing up to the pagoda, he noticed movement inside and discovered three boys ...along with a stockpile of groceries from the old Safeway store that would have kept them in fine fettle for weeks to come.

The water was coming from a hose they had stretched from the adjacent photo room. It had frozen, since it was the dead of winter, and cracked, causing water to cascade periodically from the roof.

George Foreman used to bring a few buddies to the grounds on Sundays when George was 18 or 19 and stationdd at the Camp Parks Job Corps, sit around and strum guitar and sing.

Lee Hall, Fairgrounds Manager, chimes in with the story of the former 49er football player, Kevin Hardy, who had a penchant for hosing people down.

Seems Hardy and Denny Nevin, who were seasonal employees, would stand at a gate to the race track and give people a little spritz as they passed by.

This backfired one day when a group of youngsters decided to get even and drove their vehicle into the path of one piloted by Hardy. The massive Hardy was well-doused and in his anxiety to get revenge, picked up a bucket full of water and tossed it at his tormentors who ducked.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Walter Kunz, wife of the California Horse Racing Board chairman, was driving by at the time with her window down.

She got it full force!

But there are the not-at-all-funny escapades that cause hundreds ie thouands of dollars of damage....all payable by the taxpayer in the long run.

About two years ago, some intruders broke into the corporation yard and wrecked six pieces of equipment, plus aluminum railing along the track.

They drove a truck out on the track and then drove off in two pickups from the yard . The pickups were located early the following morning out on Sycamore where the miscreants had apparently engaged in a destruction derby.

Alexander was called by the sheriff's office at 3 in the morning and he rounded up a crew to rescue the battered pickups.

On another ocassion, a night watchman stopped a pickup on the grounds when he saw blood dripping from the back. The pair in the pickup later admitted to having killed a steer and were heading for a stall in the Fairgrounds to dress it down.

Alexander remembers another late night call, last winter, that came after juveniles were spotted driving jeeps (that pull the trams) around the Briggs property, adjacent to the main Fairgrounds. The juveniles were finally spotted by a watchman as they were spinning "doughnuts" around the Briggs property.

When they spotted the watchman, they fled. But not before tearing out wiring in the vehicles.

One indication of the immense responsibility that Alexander's job embodies rests in the amount of water used each day at the Fairgrounds. The facility has its own water system, maintains the pressure and control.

During the spring and summer, 26,000 gallons (minimum) go into the race track each day and another 26,000 for the gardens and lawns. During the Fair it would more than double on any given day.

The Fairgrounds has three miles of sewer lines. While Alexander's department maintains the sewer lines on the grounds, which serve the trailer park, barns and all other buildings, sewage treatment is taken care of through the city plant.

A native of California, Alexander began his association with the county in 1954. He had been a stationary engineer for Standard Brands and Blue Seal Bakery in Oakland.

Lou Alexander confers with Russ Owen of staff

Fairgrounds chuckles

Based in Oakland, Alexander used to come out to Pleasanton and do electrical work at the Fairgrounds. He did this until the late 50s.

Alexander recalls that Fritz Bollman, Dale Carrithers and Bill Ralph, members of the Fair Board at that time, interviewed him. He served as an assistant to then maintenance foreman Lance Wood before being selected as Wood's successor when he retired in 1965.

The maintenance staff used to work out of the existing fire house. The present building was completed in 1963, during Jim Trimingham's stint as Fairgrounds secretary-manager.

Possessed of an excellent memory for detail as well as former associates, Alexander notes that Wray Bergstrom headed-up the Pleasanton operation before Trimingham. Lee Hall has been secretary-manager for the last three years.

The job of maintenance superintendent is one that knows few bounds.

Alexander and his staff have had to upgrade all electrical wiring to conform with OSHA standards.

The race track in itself requires one full-time maintenance man.

That job was handled with superb efficiency by the late Sam Higuera, who died a few weeks ago. Mr. Higuera worked in that position for 32 years.

The barn area is busy year-round with an average of 300 horses on the grounds. Alexander believes the local facility is the oldest one in the country and the largest training track in the United States.

The track is tended to 365 days of the year.

Alexander says maintenance of the infield, long a worrisome task, has been resolved with the inception of the golf course operated by Ronald Curtola. In Alexander's view, the course has made the infield at the Pleasanton track one of the most attractive on the Fair circuit.

Not reticent about expressing opinions, Alexander said he'd like to see the track become a major one with a racing season in addition to the annual Fair meet. "We could well support it," he declares, "though racing dates are like gold....they're hard to get.

Fair-time finds Alexander on a near-16 hour a day schedule, as maintenance problems escalate.

But it's a schedule that Alexander seems to thrive on.

And the results are borne out after a trip about the grounds....which are neat, trim and in good repair at all times.

Spiliotopoulos court date postponed by Judge Carson

HAYWARD — Municipal Court Judge Joseph J. Carson yesterday continued the case against Alameda County Planning Commissioner George Spiliotopoulos.

The former Pleasanton City Councilman is charged with reckless driving in Castro Valley on July 28.

A California Highway Patrolman arrested and transported him to Santa Rita where Spiliotoooulos claims deputy sheriffs beat him up.

Deputies charge he resisted arrest while Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins has taken "personal authority" in the investigation. Charges have not been filed.

Spiliotopoulos has vowed to work for reform of the county's controversial jail facility.

Funeral Notice

Helen Lamont

Funeral services for Helen Ferrell Lamont will be held at 1 p.m., Monday in the chapel of Callaghan Mortuary, 3833 East Ave.

Her body was found Wednesday morning in her east Livermore apartment. She was shot in the head

A native of Chicago and Livermore resident for five years, she was employed by the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory for the past three and one-half years.

She is survived by her mother, Mary Rose, and stepfather, Paul Sterner; and her daughters, Stephanie, nine, and Valerie, six.

Her husband, William C. Lamont, was arrested in Nevada Thursday and charged in the murder.

Friends may call at the mortuary Sunday evening.

Card of Thanks

The kindness and sympathy of friends in our recent sorrow will always remain with us a precious memory. Our sincere thanks and gratitude for all those comforting acts.

The Medeiros Family

Pleasanton firemen get variance

The Pleasanton Planning Commission awarded the Pleasanton Fire Department a variance so that they can get their new fire truck in their old garage.

Fire Station No. 2 is located in a single family residence at 7769 Desertwood Drive (the single family no longer resides there) and the old fire truck just fit in the old garage.

However, the new fire truck — which is deemed necessary to give adequate fire protection to Stoneridge-Oakhill residents — is some three feet longer than the garage.

It would be no problem to extend the garage, except that the extension puts the garage too close to the street, according to city ordinances.

However, the planners had mercy on the fire department and allowed the firemen to extend the garage on the condition that when they vacate the present Fire Station No. 2, they restore the garage to its old dimensions.

BART director raps fare increase

Raising of Bay Area Rapid Transit fares effective Nov. 3 and approval of a parking lot charge of 50 cents by BART directors has drawn sharp criticism from Robert Allen of Livermore, the valley's representative to the BART Board of Directors.

"A majority of them (fellow BART directors) seemed to vote as if it was a setup deal," Allen contended, in discussing the vote Thursday that will increase the fare structure on all lines....save those riders going between downtown points in San Francisco and Oakland.

The fare increases come in additional surcharges made for trips through the transbay tube.

Directors okayed parking lot charges of 50 cents for lots at suburban stations, but said they would not implement the charges until next July.

Allen and fellow director Nello Bianco of Richmond objected to the fare hikes and parking fees. Bianco contended that riders lost because of the higher fares "will be the people least able to afford it.

Both also felt that parking charges shouldn't be approved unless BART is ready to implement them. Allen told The Times Thursday that no specific plans have been prepared or considered for collecting the fees.

Allen also believes the new rate structure "gravely endangers the money we get from $1 excursion fares.

He said that a rider could get on at a downtown San Francisco or Oakland station and ride the complete system for a total cost of 25. It would be five cents higher for patrons of Southern Alameda County and Contra Costa County stations.

Allen is concerned with what he termed "a lack of discussion on the merits of the general manager's (Frank Herringer) proposal." The valley director said "there should be a Daly City surcharge at least equal to that for East Bay residents." The approved plan calls for East Bay patrons to pay a 25-cent surcharge and West Bay and Berkeley-Richmond line patrons 15 cents.

Allen later modified his stand on the parking charge, saying it will encourage car pools and feeder buses.

As matters stand now, valley residents commuting to Oakland or San Francisco points via BART feeder buses and BART trains pay 50 cents when they get on the bus in the valley and another fare from the Hayward or Bay Fair BART station to their point of destination. The commuter in Contra Costa County does the same.

However, bus riders in the metropolitan area going to a BART station now pay only 25 cents. The same is true of San Francisco patrons taking Muni Railway buses to West Bay BART stations.

The commuter buses to valley and Contra Costa points, however, do not accept free transfers off of BART....as is the case with all other bus lines in the metropolitan area.

The maximum fare now would be $1.45 for a ride on BART from Fremont station to Daly City. It would be $1.35 from Concord to downtown San Francisco.

Other costs, under the new fare schedule, would be Hayward to downtown San Francisco, $1.20 (it now costs $1); Bay Fair to downtown SF, $1.15; Walnut Creek to SF, $1.25; Richmond to SF, $1.

Thus, the commuter from valley points to San Francisco will pay $1.70 each way (50 cents for BART feeder bus and $1.20 for BART train from Hayward) or a nickel less if going to Bay Fair.

In comparison, a patron starting from a metropolitan Oakland point by bus and completing his journey to downtown San Francisco by BART train would pay a maximum of $1 going and 75 cents returning (25-cent saving on transfer from BART to bus).

On sports

Self-conscious superstar

Mike Zampa

Most of Bill Walton's relatives look like models on those back page pulp magazine advertisements for beautiful bodies. They are tall, incredibly muscular, and endowed with Southern California blond hair that makes them look almost too good to be believed.

They should be making a fortune in vitamin commercials.

Bill, however, doesn't possess the Olympian stature of his brothers and sisters. Obviously he is a giant. You've got to be roughly 6-11 to start at center in the National Basketball Association

But there is none of the god-like grace in that frame. Bill is gangly, almost gaunt since switching over to a health food-vegetable diet.

He has always appeared awkward. His hair is flame red, and at such a length that he looks like a recently uprooted carrot.

Of course they never payed off in the NBA for looks, and the Portland Trailblazers never hired Bill Walton to make hair spray commercials.

Bill's appearance, however, when stacked up against the rest of The Waltons, may provide some insight into one of America's most complex sports celebrities.

At least that's the thinking of Reina Whitney, a Dublin woman who befriended the family years before Bill ever made the lineup.

Reina and Gloria Walton, Bill's mother, first met at Cathedral Girls High School in San Diego, more than 25 years ago. They have been intimates since. Mrs. Whitney is the mother of three, and of course we know how mothers will equate even life's complexities with a child's first set of braces, or first bra.

Maybe she's a frustrated Freud, or just a too typical parent. But she remembers Walton from the time he was 16 months old and strangers used to ask if the baby were retarded. "I told them no," Reina says. "He was just a very large, awkward baby who drooled like babies will."

Today no one's shadow stretches farther than Bill Walton's. He may have been the greatest college player of all time. He could still become a professional superstar, despite a dismal rookie year in Portland.

But Bill was over matched as a youngster, according to Reina Bruce Walton, a year older than brother Bill, was always the family centerpiece. He was massive, (6-9, 270 today) blond, and handsome with a disarming personality.

Though the brothers were close, Bill didn't match Bruce for charm. Bill Walton was just a serious kid, who clammed up when his big mouth brother was around.

Actually the whole family was like a Schlitz Beer commercial during Bill's youth, full of gusto and all of that. The father, Ted, used to sing opera to a blaring stereo on Saturday mornings.

He wrote and composed music, and in fact, formed a family orchestra Bill and Bruce were the trumpeters.

As things became more raucous in the Walton's La Mesa home, however, Bill remained the retiring youngster, unfomfortable in public. If it begins to sound like he was a depressed, neurotic kid, well that's not so, according to Reina. He was "fun-loving" and a normal "rough-and-tumble" type. "But he was painfully shy, and self conscious."

Bill could make you laugh though. The Walton children lived by a rule that they could sleep at night with one favorite toy. One time when Reina was the baby-sitter, Bill's selection was the back yard garden hose. "I had to put a stop to the rule," she laughs.

Bruce and Bill were the typical rough-necks, and the object of their play was often Reina's young son, who did not come in the giant, economy size. He spent much of his time in the Walton's yard, getting knocked out of a row boat Ted Walton purchased for the kids.

Somehow they all remained friends.

Bill began to find his outlet in the sixth grade at the Blessed Sacrament School in San Diego when he first played organized basketball.

Even then he was the superstar, being two heads above the opposition, and probably the coach.

At Helix High Schooll Bill and Bruce made a shambles of San Diego basketball. They became "The Walton Gang," in the press, and those damned &%$-&% to all of the losing teams.

There was little question Bill would attend UCLA for basketball, according to Reina. The school had signed Bruce for football a year earlier, and the two wanted to be reunited. Of course the tradition of national championships may have helped.

It was there that the country first learned about the Big Red Head who played great basketball but never talked about it.

Bill had little to tell newspapers and magazines and television, and he played for John Wooden who was a master at shielding players from the press.

Few strangers knew what he really felt, because he wouldn't tell them. His personal life was for family and friends. He became a challenge for reporters, and to some, an opponent because he wouldn't cooperate.

Today Walton is not a grim ogre, defiant of outside intrusion, according to Reina Whitney. He's just the same kid who couldn't sneak in a word during family arguements

She last visited with Bill three years ago when the family had convened at the house in La Mesa. Big brother Bruce was there, as dashing and charming as ever.

Bill was in the other room asleep. He hadn't really changed.

Sunday: What it's like now

Stars gas up one more time

Game night for the tenth Alameda vs Contra Costa All-Star Football Game.

And what are the principals musing over in these final hours before kickoff? The energy crisis, and how it influences their own depressed economies.

For some of the kids playing in tonight's benefit game at Tak Fudenna Stadium (kickoff is 8 p.m.) the final gun will be a welcome relief.

The Alameda players, especially those from the EBAL, have been piling up quite a few driving miles since twice-daily practices began two weeks ago at Laney College. Tonight's game marks the end of their great overland trek.

"It's a good thing," remarked former Dublin High School defensive end Troy Roberson. "I put $5 worth of gas in my car the other day, and by the time I got home again, I had about $2 worth left."

"Of course he only gets eight miles per gallon," pointed out twin brother Rayford.

Both are expected to play in the Alameda defense this evening, though Troy was injured during a Tuesday scrimmage.

Injuries have left the Alameda offense in much doubt. Theotis Browon of Skyline, Mission San Jose's Steve Noon, and Troy Roberson are all backfield possibilities, but all have been injured.

It could be game time before a starting lineup is set.

The quarterback will be Skyline's Drew Field, and he will be throwing to his high school teammate, wide receiver Charles Hill

Contra Costa will feature a strong throwing offense with either Dan Hartwig of Ygnacio Valley, or Alhambra's DeVallon Harper at quarterback.

Concord's Mike Chronister is the leading receiver. Billy Anderson of El Cerrito, and Pinole's Horace Thomas head up the backfield.

The Alameda defense is expected to be strong, with a front line featuring nose guard Eugene Fortune of Berkeley. He is an Alameda co-captain. Livermore's Doug Pope may start on the line, and Ron Foreman will definitely open up at cornerback.

Monte Vista's Casey Merrill should start for the Contra Costa defense. San Ramon guard Rich Wright is expected to open on offense, and Ted Athan will see duty at wide receiver.

Contra Costa carries a 6-3 edge in games into tonight's 10th all-star contest.

The sixth victory was a 19-16 decision last year.

Alameda could be the favorite if its runners are healthy. Brown, bound for UCLA Monday, hyper-extended his knee in the Tuesday scrimmage.

"It feels all right when I run straight ahead," he said. "But I can't cut on it or move to the side."

Noon suffered a shoulder injury but should play. Troy Roberson wound up with an injured thigh, but also says he will play.

Black director protests Bacon's Fair ride

The only black man to ever sit on the Alameda County Fair's board of directors is seething over the appearance of controversial jockey Mary Bacon in Pleasanton last July 3.

Oakland attorney Arnold Miller told fellow directors Tuesday night he will fire off a protest to the California Horse Racing Board, which sanctioned Bacon's ride at the Pleasanton race track.

Mary is the notorious jockey, who, among her many feats, appeared as a nude centerfold in "Playboy," and once addressed a Ku Klux Klan rally.

Miller said he will complain to the racing board on two grounds. The first is that Bacon's appearance was "personally insulting," to him. His second complaint is the charge that the board used Pleasanton as a test track for crowd reaction to Mary.

"My particular repulsion was the KKK thing," Miller said. "The nude centerfold in Playboy doesn't bother me at all. But obviously she doesn't agree with the philosophy I have."

Miller said he'd never heard of the blond jockey until he returned from the fair July 4, and read a feature article in the "Oakland Tribune."

That's where he first learned of her affilliation with the Klan. It is also, Miller said, where he learned that Pleasanton was viewed as a sounding board of crowd reaction to Bacon

It is that point he protested most vigorously .

"It's a ludicrous kind of thing that Alameda County can be a crowd test to see if she can ride in California," Miller complained. "That kind of action in this area, because of the minority makeup, especially the black population, was inappropriate. I'm going to ask for an explanation of why the board did it at this time."

Miller said most board members had no advanced warning that the nationally prominent jockey was Pleasanton bound. He charged that the racing audience was jeopardized by her appearance, and the absence of advanced notice.

Bacon was scratched from mounts at Hollywood Park in Southern California, Miller said, after her one appearance there instigated a crowd fracas.

The opportunity for similar disturbances in Pleasanton was a danger to the race crowd July 3, he claimed. According to Miller, race track security could have been beefed up had notification of her arrival been forwarded in advance.

News stories of Bacon's arrival appeared in the Bay Area up to three days prior to July 3. Miller, however, saw none of those accounts.

Mary's one day appearance at the track was uneventful. She finished well out of the money in her only race.

Though things progressed smoothly throughout her stay, Miller is still angry at the fair board.

"It would appear common courtesy to say that she will be riding, and that we should be aware of it," Miller said. "There was a potential of danger, and you should be notified when the potential for danger exists. I want to know why the hell they jeopardized 20,000 race fans."

Actual attendance that day was 8,411.

Miller said he would not seek to bar Mary from riding at Pleasanton in the future. It would probably be a violation of her civil rights, he said.

He did indicate, however, that his letter would focus on two points:

— "that there would not be a reoccurance of that type of activity"

— and, "that that kind of action in this area is inappropriate."

March of Dimes chairman Bud Taryn accepts $1,500 check from firefighter Bob Costa and police officer Larry Fuller, awards plaques. Times photo

Firemen, police battle raises $1,500

Football proves good fundraiser

LIVERMORE — The Bay Area March of Dimes organization is a little bit richer and Valley policemen and firefighters perhaps in a little better shape, thanks to a football game they staged that raised $1,500.

Bud Tari, Livermore's March of Dimes volunteer chairman, Wednesday gave out "thank you" plaques and accepted the check on behalf of his organization. The money will go toward research on birth defects and mental retardation, according to Tari..

A special plaque went to Bob Costa of the Livermore Fire Department, prime mover behind the big football game which the firefighters won, 22-7 over the police.

"We hope this will become an annual event," said Tari, but Costa wasn't promising. The May 3 game involving 60 members of various police and fire departments in the Valley was played at the Livermore High football field.

Proceeds would have been a few hundred dollars more except that two policemen had to be hospitalized for injuries ("and they talk about police brutality," muttered Larry Fuller of the Alameda County Sheriff's Department.)

Latin culture class offered by Chabot

Chabot College's Valley Campus in Livermore will offer a course in Latin culture designed to ssist individuals planning to travel in Mexico.

The one-unit, two-hour course will include aspects of geography, archeology and language of Mexico and will emphasize practical rather than theoretical aspects of travel. Beginning Sept. 16, the class will meet on Tuesdays from 12:30 to 2:20 p.m. in room 201.

The class will begin with several slide lectures on "This is Mexico," dealing with the past and present. From there, it will discuss the geography of Mexico, including the variable climate in areas and best times to visit.

Typical tourist locations will be explored in detail and how to bargain, where to find the best bargains, and Mexican money will also be discussed.

Western motif may dominate new Christensen School park

LIVERMORE — Greenville North residents may be getting a little something special for the playground they'll have next to Christensen School.

The Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD) staff is taken by a fancy piece of playground equipment -- a climbing apparatus in the form of a row of Western storefronts.

"It's a little more than we usually put in a neighborhood park," noted LARPD general manager Bill Payne at Wednesday night's public meeting.

"But maybe for the Bicentennial .."

The parkland(isn't even officially city property yet — condemnaion proceedings are still(not complete. At last report, the parcel was about 7.2 acres in size.

Northside residents will be able(to help shape plans for the park at a meeting on the site 6:30 p.m Thursday, Aug. 28. LARPD staff and the elected board of directors will be on hand with sketche of the "preliminary plan for the proposed park,"(as Lowell Bergman, superintendent of parks and planning, expressed it to sho the tentative nature of(the sketches.

The Rec District's plans for other Livermore parks are proceeding at a brisk clip. A Sacramento architect has been selected to design renovations for Ravenswood, the Victorian estate south of town which will become a large historical site-park-picnic ground.

Directors questioned a decision by Superintendent Bergman to continue to close Sycamore Grove, a 360-acre park off Arroyo Road, to public use.

Bergman explained there were no water lines yet in the property, which could mean disaster in case of fire. He said the district would probably have to pay close to $4,000 to have a 300 to 400-foot -deep well dug to serve the park (and even then the water might not be suitable for drinking) or would have to dig a pond in the creek and put in a pumping apparatus to draw water from there in case of fire.

Roads and fencing have been built and the park has already been lightly used by horseback-riding children attending LARPD's "Camp Bronco" down the road at Vets' Park.

Who sets standard for professions?

A call from a Livermore school teacher, a conversation with a member of the county education board, and a concern voiced by a Pleasanton wife and mother all appeared to somehow add up to the same message: "Who really sets the standard for that army of public servants known as 'professionals'?"

The catalyst for the conversations recited above came in the aftermath of our editorial suggestion that "the deputy sheriffs within the Alameda County system" are the ones best equipped to right any wrongs within that organization — including the much-maligned Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center. But the target of these particular comments was not just law enforcement people, but rather "teachers who are simply not suited to that role" ... "lawyers who abuse their own profession." If we waited a day or two, it is presumed others might recall the big flap over "who is really the cause of malpractice suits?" ... or that recent Supreme Court decision which compels the legal profession to make known its fees as a consumer safeguard.

In none of this should we suddenly find widespread sins of commission or omission throughout those many respected "professions". Rather we find a healthy spirit of disclosure, and hopefully better understanding, that might bring a lot of 19th century cloisters into the light of 21st century civilization.

It is a move long overdue.

The tradition which says that certain numbers of us are to be afforded a shield against any and all disclosure of our public servitude is not only archaic, it is downright dangerous. There are respected members of medicine who now reason that the malpractice insurance debacle came about because "we simply weren't policing our own members properly, and we wouldn't allow any outsider to do the job for us."

We are well aware — belatedly — that the great shroud of secrecy afforded the legal profession and its many political branches was certainly the funnel, if not the cause, which brought this nation through Watergate, and brought a presidency to international disgrace.

We are learning, very slowly, that secrecy in matters of public concern is the great enemy of the democratic process. It can also be the cloak to hide terrible violations within such places as a county prison, an operating room or a classroom.

"We teachers know there are misfits in our schools, but our hands are tied ... we cannot fight the system," that Livermore teacher informed us. We appreciate her frustration, but we cannot accept her conclusion. Our hands are never tied, not as long as a free and intelligent people understand that the bedrock of our society is the integrity of those who would mold men's minds and spirits and bodies.

They are mankind's servants, just as you and I. It is time they realized that.

Kallam's comment. . .

Big deal on billboards

The way the supervisors react, one would think that billboards are more important than tax increases.

As noted here before, only three supervisors were present for much of the public testimony on the $329 million budget that will raise taxes throughout the valley.

In fact, Fred Cooper didn't even bother to show up for any of the meetings, except the last one. And he was three hours late for that.

And surprisingly, there was little contention amongst the supervisors during the hearings. It was calm, orderly, rational (though some would dispute that adjective) and accomplished with a minimum of ruffled feathers.

But billboards are another storyentirely. The issue is fairly clearcut — should billboards be outlawed in residential and agricultural areas of the county?

The ordinance saying that was passed nearly seven years ago, but the way John Murphy and Joe Bort went at it one would have thought it was one of the big issues in Alameda County history.

All the supervisors have expressed their opinions in great detail and several times on this earthshaking issue. The board is split 3-2, with Cooper the swing vote, and the final decision on most of the billboards will not be made until December.

The point in waiting is to make sure all the evidence is in and that lots of review can go on.

Wonderful. That's a most impressive use of the time of the board of supervisors.

By the time the final ruling is made (if ever) the supervisors will have spent over a year debating this vital matter with some acrimony.

Budget hearings, though, can be accomplished in no time. Four quick hearings, attended by a bare quorum is plenty to determine approximately one-quarter of the property taxes in the county.

Cooper didn't bother to show at all and the discussions were peaceful and unmarred by any hint of strong feelings over the $329 million.

Of course, this is nothing new. C. N. Parkinson of Parkinson's Law fame had a special section on this particular kind of committee activity.

A committee will pass a $3 million item without flinching, he maintained, because no one has any conception of how much $3 million is. In fact, he claimed, it will be passed with little or no discussion.

But, Parkinson went on, bring up a $175 paint job and the discussion will go on for hours, because everyone can relate to $175.

Unfortunately, it seems Parkinson was much more accurate than humorous. It's a shame the Alameda County Board of Supervisors has to so thoroughly bear out this unflattering analysis of human nature.

And what's worse, it costs you and me money.

FOCUS/Fairgrounds

Good news and bad

The County Fair Association Board of Directors learned this week they won't be able to build $485,000 in livestock barns (Amador Pavilion) for at least two years, the California Spring Garden Show intends on staying in Oakland for 1976 and thctd $1 million Hall of Commerce may be much more than five years down the road.

Not exactly encouraging news . . . but reflective of the times.

We could also mention the continuing vandalism at the Fairgrounds and a letter received by the board, from a fellow director, concerning the appearance of Jockette Mary Bacon at the Fair race track this season as being indicative of the times but these two items are covered on the news pages.

The livestock barns were proposed for construction during the coming fiscal year, under the terms of the Fair's five-year capital improvements program, but a communique from the State has caused Fair Association management to put the project on the back burner.

DeWitt Wilson, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, told fellow directors Tuesday the State funding of the $485,000 project, which would amount to $220,000, will come "in little dribbles"....$80,000 in 75-76, $40,000 in 76-77 and $100,000 "to be considered" in 77-78.

As a result, the Fair will have to postpone construction of the sorely-needed livestock barns two or three years.

The news of the California Spring Garden Show was not a e.

While directors and Fairgrounds manager Lee Hall had extended an invitation to relocate several months ago, they were never too encouraged of the show moving from its previous Dunsmuir House location in Oakland to Pleasanton.

A letter read to directors Tuesday, from the garden show board president Jay Ver Lee, said the show will move from Dunsmuir to Lakeside Gardens (adjacent to Lake Merritt) because of the organization's "financial situation."

The latter refers to a subsidy the show receives from the City of Oakland. Ver Lee stated "we can't afford to move out of the city and lose the aid."

While this is understandable, it is unfortunate that some additional meeting of the minds couldn't have been attempted. The show, once a prime social and cultural event in the Bay Area, has drifted to several sites in Oakland with consequent lack of interest and funding.

Though far from the metropolitan area, we can't help but believe the show would thrive in this area....since there is a greater cultural awareness in this and neighboring areas than what one might find in an urban setting.

We hope the Fair Board of Directors and Manager Lee Hall will renew the invitation at some later date and perhaps setup a joint Spring Garden Show-Fair Association directors committee to study methods of financing the show.

The Hall of Commerce was projected for the 1978-79 year and is intended to be the biggest structure on the grounds, even surpassing the now-open Young California Building.

From comments made Tuesday night, and in light of the fiscal crisis shadowing all levels of government, it is unlikely the building will be past the architectural design stage by '79....if that.

But these setbacks should be balanced by the many other projects annts hat have already occurred at the Fairgrounds or will be taking place in the next year.

It is a sizable list.

Generally speaking, the Alameda County Fairgrounds does not take a back seat to anyone or anything....at least not without a darn good reason.

Letters to the Times

Not blighted area

Editor, The Times:

As a citizen of Pleasanton for the last 18 years, I wish to voice my objections to the formation of the proposed Redevelopment Agency. My objections are:

(1) It appears to me that even though the description of some of the property within the proposed Redevelopment District may technically qualify as a "blighted" area, that in fact there are no blighted areas in any sense of the word including time extrapolated economic blight to the downtown area. I am convinced that to describe any region in Pleasanton in those terms is clearly counter to the spirit of the law even if the technicalities of the law are obeyed.

(2) There are no compelling reasons to form such an agency since the city can, if its citizens so desire, accomplish any of the publically stated goals. I am especially fearful of investing such all encompassing power into an agency which will ... be autonomous with no direct checks by the citizenry. ...

(3) The inclusion of the proposed Stoneridge Shopping Center within the District would divert major tax revenues generated by the center into the Redevlopment Agency ... Thus, an enormous amount of tax monies slated for the local school districts, city services, and county services would then have to be made up. This has to increase taxation for everyone. The argument that such additional taxation is negligible is simply not true. ... It appears to me that only special interest groups such as developers, contracters, real estate dealers, and a very small fraction of the business community can benefit from this action. ...

I would recommend to (city council members) that you vote against formation of a Redevelopment Agency. I believe that if the citizenry of Pleasanton had been adequately informed of the nature and intent of such an agency, you would find wide spread disapproval. The amount of money involved is extraordinarily large — $27 million in 45 years — that I cannot conceive of it being used to simply redevelop the downtown area, straighten a few streets, buy up some 16 pieces of property, fix a poor water line, etc. I cannot help but be suspicious that some very large project is being contemplated ...

I strongly believe that if the citizens of Pleasanton were to vote on the matter, the results would be an overwhelming majority against Agency formation. Should the council vote in favor of formation, then I for one would certainly do my utmost to call for a referendum against that ordinance.

Don't move historic church

The year 1976 marks the bi-centennial of our country and everywhere plans are being made to commemorate this important anniversary. Historic buildings and sites are being marked, cleaned and repaired. The Presbyterian Church in Pleasanton will celebrate its 100th year.

For the past century the beautiful white chapel has graced the corner of 2nd and Neal streets, enhancing the beauty and peacefulness of this quaint part of the old town, a town which has the luck and the privilege to have a large number of its old historic buildings and homes still standing in tact, something unusual for any town in this modern age in the State of California.

The quaintness and nostalgic loveliness of the old Pleasanton, which attracts tourists from everywhere, should be the pride and joy of City Government, Civic Organizations and Citizens alike. The 19th century atmosphere has even attracted movie makers from Hollywood to use old Pleasanton for their settings. However, some of the Presbyterian Congregation desires to build a new church, move the old chapel to another site and abandon the historic site upon which it now stands with its valuable complex of historic buildings.

Included in this complex is the former home of Judge William T. Harris, well known as a Superior Court Judge for Alameda County and especially well known in Pleasanton as the son of a pioneer business man and son in law of Joshua Neal, one of the founders of the city. The land now occupied by this complex of buildings was once that of Joshua Neal. It is so situated that it is easily noticed by the visitor amid its historic surroundings of 19th century houses all well kept making this a show spot for the City of Pleasanton.

To move the building would be a desecration and a direct mark of disrespect to all of those pioneer members of the congregation who have worked so hard, and are still working, to make this wonderful landmark what it is.

It is my hope, and that of many others throughout our valley, that this historic landmark can remain on its original site, continue to serve it's congregation and be recognized, as it should be, as one of the valley's most important landmarks.

Amador-Livermore Valley Historical Society

round the town

Personally, I have a great deal of respect for Betty Ford. As a wife and mother, she seems to be at least on a par with today's crop in both those categories. And as the First Lady of the land, I would have to place Betty right up there with Ladybird Johnson as a sharp, enlightened helpmate for our president.

If anything, Betty is just a trifle more straightforward than Ladybird. And that is what has Jerry Ford's lover in trouble, again.

It is one thing for you and I to know that people have premarital relations, and that sort of thing. It is something else for the president's wife to have such thoughts, and to share them with 30 million Americans in prime time Sunday night television. Not since Harry Truman blasted that music critic, or Lincoln ordered all of his generals to follow Grant's medicinal libations, has there been such a flap eminating from the White House.

Picture, if you will, this scene in Dustbowl, Arizona, the center (as you know) of all deep-rooted American beliefs, including the Neilsen ratings and the balloting for Miss America. Mr. and Mrs. Steady Trueblue are enjoying the second hour of CBS news when Mr. Trueblue slams down his TV Guide in disgust, and says thusly:

"That Betty Ford has gone and done it for sure, this time."

"Steady there Steady," Mrs. Trueblue says, "what is it that our beloved First Lady has done to get you so riled?"

"Why, speaking out on sex and things like that on national televison, that's what! Mr. Cronkite says that Mrs. Ford is in favor of young people doing what they do before they get properly wedded. Now whoever heard of a president's wife saying such things, and on national television too!"

"Well now, Steady, we were watching that interview with Mrs. Ford while you were out at your National Guard meeting, and wedidn't hear her say any such thing. She simply admitted young folks are doing that sort of thing, that's all..."

"We? Do you mean to tell me you were watching that woman say them things in the company of our own beloved little Purewhite Trueblue?"

"Purewhite and me were watching the show together, Steady, and I certainly didn't see nothing wrong..."

"Nothing wrong?! Why woman, have you completely lost your senses? You know we've never even discussed sex and things like that with our little girl. Now you got this damned woman telling her all about having an affair before she's properly churched."

"Purewhite is 19 going on 20 after all," Mrs. Trueblue noted, "and I really think she knows more about these things than we care to admit. After all, your sister's girl was six months along when she got wedded, and everybody in six counties knew..."

"That is not the same thing woman, and you know it," Steady Trueblue thundered. "One little mistake don't ruin the whole batch of cider. And besides, since you choose to bring up my family's private business, what about that young brother of yours? His future daddy-in-law wasn't packing that shotgun at the wedding just to fend off evil spirits. If ever I saw a bride in urgent need of a husband and a father for her child it was certainly that young lady."

Steady was so worked up by now that he turned the sound off on his favorite Chrysler commercial, and watched the rest of the message in stony silence. But just then Purewhite Trueblue entered the room, and greeted her parents thusly:

"Hi Moms, hi Pops, I see you been watching Walter Cronkite on the news. We was watching it over at Nancy Untouched's house. Wow, you should of heard what Mr. Untouched had to say about Mrs. Ford's views on sex and stuff. He called her 'a damned Republican libber' and said she's a disgrace to the White House."

"Oh, he did eh," Steady Trueblue said, turning one eye from his favorite Big Mac Hamburger commercial. "Now that sounds like something an up-tight Democrat like Horace Untouched would say. I suppose his idea of a gracious First Lady would be that awful Kennedy woman, the one who married that dirty old man, or maybe he admires Bess Truman because she never talked in public about her drunken husband. Compared to them Democratic presidents and their ladies, Betty and Gerald Ford are just about saints, that's what they are."

"Does that mean you aren't going to write Mrs. Ford after all, telling her that she's a disgrace to American womanhood?" Mrs. Trueblue asked, turning off the television.

"What it means, woman, is that I am going to write to President Ford and remind him of that grandest of Middle America teachings...'A wife who is kept barefoot and pregnant has little time for shooting off her mouth on national television.'

"Now turn the blessed thing back on, woman, don't you realize we're missing that two-hour special on Archie Bunker?"

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Maybe downtown Livermore is sick.

A man can shoot a cannon down First Street at 11:30 p.m. and not hit an open service station.

And not a hell of a lot of anything else either.

I made that service station discovery Wednesday night after having attended what might have been an organizational meeting of a Livermore Merchants Association.

With a fuel gauge reading zero and fifteen miles separating this old man from a warm bed in San Ramon, the news was chilling to say the least.

I was afraid to drive around town looking for an open station.

Back in the days of yore before the great gasoline scare of 1973 there was almost always one station open in Livermore as the witching hour approached.

Things have changed. Tombstone, Arizona probably carries more traffic over its main street than does First Street in Livermore on a week night.

Come the weekends and things are different. That is the night the younger set cruises the main, a recently revived and perhaps better left phenomena from the fifties.

Wednesday night I turned north on L Street, then west on Interstate 580, moving at a snail's pace to conserve energy.

At the top of the overpass which crosses the railroad spur leading through Dublin I peered at the bright lights on Hopyard Road and saw a couple of service station signs gleaming in the darkness.

There was life in the old valley yet.

More than the lights of service stations glowed on Hopyard Road.

Denny's Restaurant gleamed warmly in the distance. The bright red Carnation sign told me the ice cream restaurant was open for business. There was action at the Hungrey Hunter and signs of life at the Motel 6.

Downtown Livermore was tucked in for the night. Dublin slumbered peacefully, though not completely. But there was life in Pleasanton, though slightly on the outskirts.

The situation, I thought, might be indicative of things to come. Certainly it was a happy situation as far as I was concerned.

There are better ways of spending a Wednesday midnight than walking along Interstate 580 carrying a gallon of gasoline.

Back in Livermore I had gathered with some 30 to 40 people in The Cover Up, an establishment located right next to the place once called Jimbo's on J Street.

Earlier in the evening I had used some portion of my dwindling supply of gas searching for the place.

Of course I was a victim of either misinformation or misconception.

(Once Zippety-do-dah, the greatest female Boxer who ever lived for my money, presented us with a litter of puppies including some fine animals and a trio of females who were something less than mediocre. I called them Miss Fire, Miss Fortune and Miss Conception. The purchasers of Miss Fire were very proud. "She's just full of fire, " they told us. Which proves, of course, a name is what you make it.) Whatever the case I was looking for a shop which sold bikinis and tops which would cover up a little skin while their wearers roamed from beach to dressing room.

Livermore's Cover Up, operated by Bonnie Steele and Bobbi Silva, is interested in walls. They are interior decorators. Because they located next to Jimbo's, where once the only thing the waitresses covered was the tops of mustard bottles, they thought The Cover Up would be a fine name for the neighbor which specialized in wall paper among other things

Parking was the chief concern of the lads and lassies gathered at the Cover Up Wednesday. Some of them had approached the City Council recently and objected to a parking surcharge tacked on to their use permits. The municipal parking lot, they said, was being occupied by county employes using the civic center building off Livermore Avenue rather than the clientele of shops along First Street.

The Council, at least according to a couple of folks in attendance, gave them short shrift.

"I was embarrassed and humiliated," Bonnie Steele reported. With her embarrassment the idea for a merchant's association which would present a united front was born.

I good idea, I say.

Frequently, in the past, I have thought of forming an association of newspaperpeople who have been humiliated by the Livermore City Council.

Believe me, I would have been a charger member (That "charger"was a typo. I meant it to be charter. But now that I see it, the idea seems like a good one.)

There was a time when I thought I might meet Helen Tirsell at high noon on First Street, bear grease in our holsters and sweaty palms swinging at our sides It was touch and go, my friends.

Bonnie and Bobbi are more reasonable. Their approach is direct, but sethey are interest$ is in parking but it ranges far beyond automobiles. They think an association might improve things in Livermore.

If not they may move to Dublin soon.

Or Pleasanton. Where a man can purchase a little gasoline for a thirsty automobile at midnight.

For Friday, Aug. 15, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You set high goals today. However, you can't afford to kid yourself as to what can be practically done.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things are not always what they appear to be. Investigate if you're seeking or searching for something important.

GEMINI (May 21June 20) You're fortunate today in dealing with someone with very high standards. Don't let small, selfish desires upset this relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your work habits are clean and precise today. Stick with it. Don't mess-up by involvement in another person's business.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be happiest doing the things in life that are free. There's really no need to waste money having fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You achieve a sense of well-being today with the family. Don't let one member's selfishness ruin your mood.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your feelings could easily be hurt, but you possess the mental discipline to forget it and enjoy the rest of the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A friend could interfere and stop you from getting something deeply desired. You don't have to let her get away with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone could prevent you from getting recognition you deserve. Keep your feelings to yourself. The truth will out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your pensive mood could cause you to think everything is against you. It's a foolish worry. It just isn't so.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll discover someone you thought to be your friend isn't. Don't fret. The loss is really very negligible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something will happen today. You'll feel unjustly accused of having a hand in it. Fears that it will affect your reputation are groundless.

Your Birthday

Aug. 15, 1975

You'll set lofty goals this coming year, even taking less money if necessary to achieve what you desire. Your ideals are good. They'll prove to be right.

Valley job trainees needed

EDD announces new program

The California Employement Development Department (EDD) is presently recruiting 15 trainees from the valley for a job-training program that will supply a living allowance while the training takes place.

The program — called "Individual Referral" — is for unemployed, underemployed or disadvantage people and the job training could be in almost any field.

The only restraint on the complexity of the training is that it must be complete by June 30, 1976

The EDD defines underemployed as part-time and disadvantaged as making less than the federal poverty level standard.

The program is designed primarily for adult heads of households and EDD reports that 55 persons throughout the county are already involved. Less than 10 come from the valley, and EDD officials are making a special effort to recruit trainees from the valley this time.

The Individual Referral program is so titled because each person is assigned a training program to suit his or her special abilities and needs. Such jobs as appliance repairmen, auto mechanic, nurse, and electronic technician have been filled through Individual Referral.

The EDD will assist trainees in finding jobs after the training program.

The project is sponsored by the Alameda County Training and Employment Board (ACTEB). Further information is available at 783-7211, extension 62 or 63.

Outdated food stamps will not be accepted after end of August

August 31 is the last day that food stores will be able to accept an outdated series of food stamp coupons, it was announced by the Alameda County Welfare Department.

This past March 1, the United States Department of Agriculture introduced a new series of food stamps which will replace the old ones.

The new food stamps come in $1, $5 and $10 coupons whereas the old ones came in 50 cent and $2 coupons as well.

Also, the $5 coupon has been redesigned so all holders of the old style food stamps should use them before August 31.

The primary reason for the changes in food stamps are to reduce production and shipping costs with larger coupon values. The rising value of food stamp allotments to each household and the continued expansion of the program have caused a large increase in the volume of coupons needed. A more sophisticated design in the new stamps is also expected to deter counterfeiting.

Change for food stamp purchases will now be made with the $1 coupon instead of the 50 cent coupon. When the change due is less than $1 the recipient has the option of receiving a credit slip for 99 cents or less, buying more food to cover the amount due or paying the difference in cash down to the next lower even dollar amount.

A total of 73,602 persons participated in the food stamp program in Alameda County in the month of June.

APPROXIMATELY TWO YEARS ago Carpets by Sadler merged with Turner's Rug Cleaners. During that time, the new organization has expanded their services to the valley with carpet, furniture, rugs, drapery cleaning, carpet and linoleum sales complete with installation services.

Now Sadler-Turner has opened a new showroom at 1920 Railroad Avenue in Livermore with more than 1400 sq. ft. of floor space. There is an additional 1600 sq. ft. for warehousing, cleaning rugs, furniture and storage.

Shown at the left in the photo below are Dale Turner, Livermore Councilman, with owner James L. Sadler who has been a resident of Livermore for the past seven years. Others on the staff are Gloria Kenitzer, Tom Lakner, Richard Johns and Travis Southerland.

KAMP'S FURNITURE has been in continuous operation in the Valley for 71 years. It was started by Hans Kamp in 1904 and son Harold joined his father after his release from the army at the end of World War II.

Recently Kamp 'broke ground' for the construction of a new 10,000 sq. ft. store to be located at 2695 First Street in Livermore. You'll have a better idea of the location if we say it's four blocks east of the famous downtown flagpole.

The new store will be scheduled for opening in December of this year and it will consolidate the two present locations of Kamp's at 61 North "L" Street and 2190 First Street into a single operation.

The First Street location came about in the not too distant past when the railroad relocation was put into the works and Kamp's Maple Shop, which was located on No. Livermore Avenue, fell victim to an underpass construction.

Until the new building is ready for occupancy the well known furniture store will carry on in the present locations Seen below are Terry Groshong (Maid of Livermore) left, with Harold Kamp watching Frances Kamp wield a mean ground-breaking shovel.

HERITAGE REALTORS Salesman of the Month Bill Adams (pictured left below) receives his award from Office Manager Dean Wagerman. Adams has been the recipient of several such awards and is currently one of the top producers at Heritage Realtors Dublin office located at 7124 Village Parkway. The man on the right is Dave Merritt who has recently gone to work for Heritage and is looking forward to his own first Salesman of the Month Award. Watch out, Bill!

MAKE A NOTE NOW. The Dublin Chamber of Commerce will go back to its regular schedule of General Membership Meetings in September. Luncheon meetings are scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 3rd and Wednesday, Sept 17th at the Dublin Corral.

"LEPRECHAUN SALES DAYS" are just around the corner. There are going to be lots of bargains in Dublin September 4-5-6.

Hank Lopez, salesman of the month for July for Crown Chevrolet, is also known for his civic activities with Pleasanton, Dublin and Livermore. He is executive director of Crown Chevrolet's First Annual Softball-Baseball Tournament. For more information about the tournament, call Hank at 828-6500.

Crown Chevrolet defies slump

Domestic automotive sales have been in a slump. Right? Wrong. Not at Crown Chevrolet in Dublin. Defying market conditions, owner and president Bob Woolverton has combined foresight and key personnel changes to accomplish impressive growth.

Specifically, since June 1, a 67 per cent increase in car and truck sales and last month all-time records in the service department, parts department and body shop.

How's it done? First find the right General Manager. On June 1 Crown Chevrolet acquired the talents of Mr. Frank Gutierrez. Gutierrez is a graduate of San Jose State and originally was an instructor of business administration. Then in 1961 he joined Chevrolet and systematically engaged in every phase of dealership activity, from used car management to merchandising to new car sales.

Gutierrez's first move was to re-staff most of the sales force stressing professionalism and follow-through versus "wheeling and dealing." His next move was to purify inventory. It means stocking more inventory and more of what people need and want. This has doubled "turn-over," eliminated excess flooring costs and lowered selling prices. Though very decisive and sometimes necessarily brutal, Frank's affable personality is winning over other talent in the form of top aides.

On June 5, Gutierrez started out by bringing in Jim Stevenson from Modesto as a new Service Manager. It took one month for Stevenson to set new service records. Since then, step-by-step, "the team" has been assembled and finalized on July 16 — with the acquisition of Raoul Hadley as Fleet and Truck Manager. Hadley is a graduate of the Truck Marketing Institute and is known in the Bay Area for technical advice and commercial sales.

Hadley's employment is typical of a planned sales force. It is keyed to market forecasts and the demography of Crown's primary zone of influence. For years to come passenger cars will be the larger part of most dealership sales. However, the increase of light-duty truck-type units for personal and recreational use coupled with heavier commercial demands, require foresight.

An example was Woolverton being able to set up van truck division allocations several years before the present boom and shortages was imagined. As a result, today Crown Chevrolet is a leading source of van conversions.

Other factors have helped, too. Crown Chevrolet was conceived only seven years ago as a model dealership and covers over twenty acres. The modern facilities and time-saving equipment result in low-cost one-stop customer sales and service, which even includes insurance and finance advantages.

Fortunately, our economy appears to be starting a recovery. In the meantime, it's nice to know about a success story that's good for everybody — a business and the people it serves.

It wasn't an accident . . . but that's how it's done.

Customer Service Award

Bob Mutnane (center) of Shamrock Ford in Dublin received Ford Motor Co.'s highest award — the Distinguished Service Citation — for outstanding customer service from W. B. McCall (left), Parts and Service Div. district manager. District Sales Manager W. J. Stroud was also on hand.

Chinese Checkers

Capwell's plans grand re-opening

Capwell's is now celebrating the grand re-opening of its Walnut Creek store after a full year of redecorating, and two weeks of special events will welcome customers back to the modernized store.

Gourmet Day is Aug. 27, with "Cooking with Wine" demonstrated by home economist Mary Risley from 1-2 p.m. "Wine and Cheese Tasting" will follow from 2-4 p.m., with the Denmark Cheese Association and Brown Vintners collaborating to offer the finest in complimentary wines and cheese.

Operatic favorites will be performed Tuesday, Aug. 19 from 1-2 p.m. by members of the "San Francisco Brown Bag Opera." The ancient art of belly dancing will be demonstrated by a live belly dancer on Sunday, Aug. 17 from noon to 2 p.m. and again from 3-5 p.m. in the record dept. on the third floor.

Hand quilting will be on display on Aug 25 from 10 a.m.-noon, and on Friday, Aug. 29 from 2-4 p.m. Joyce Gross from the Mill Valley Quilting Authority will give a teaching session during those times.

Rollie Fingers, relief pitcher for the Oakland A's, will sign autographs and meet customers in the Sporting Goods Dept. on the third floor on Monday, Aug. 18 from noon-1 p.m.
